

ALAN KINGSBURY

1960, London, England

Elected Academician of the Royal West of England Academy

Lives and works in West Cornwall, Scotland

Alan Kingsbury started producing works in oils from the age of nine. After studying psychology and art history, he accepted an internship at the Peggy Guggenheim Collection in Venice in 1983. Subsequently, as a cataloguer of modern paintings for Bonhams Auctioneers, he viewed many thousands of paintings and refined his understanding of detail and effect. Three years later in 1986, Kingsbury moved to Venice and began painting outdoor oil sketches in varying light conditions as a full-time artist. For over twenty years, his work was strongly characterised by imaginative figure paintings. In contrast, while expressing himself through a fluid and painterly style, his focus today lies in large scale still life, interior and landscape compositions. When transposing to the grand scale, Kingsbury has managed to retain characteristic deftness of brush and confident paint-laden strokes, continuously creating paintings with other-worldly charm and quiet wit.

Kingsbury's wonderful techniques in oil painting has brought him numerous solo exhibitions over the last thirty years. He has exhibited at the Royal Academy of Arts, The New English Art Club and the Royal Society of Portrait Painters.
